

Web Team Report 2023 Annual Meeting

The Web Team has continued to focus on collecting and publishing accurate information about our events and meetings, and to make that information easier for residents to access. This is a good time to remind you that our calendar is crowd-sourced, so all of you can help us by telling your Calendar Girls about what's going on.

We've also been working to improve communication with committees, so that the information we publish for and about them is accurate and up-to-date.

Another function of the website is to make it convenient for our residents to access documents. We are currently publishing nearly 1000 documents, from many different sources, and that's quite difficult to manage well! We're very excited that Jeri Solomon will be joining us to help with this challenge. If you're one of the many people who has given us a document to publish on the website, you can help a lot by remembering to send us a new copy whenever that document gets updated.

At this time, I'd like to recognize Nanci Saurdiff as our most valuable player for the year. In addition to keeping the calendar, Nanci has gone out of her way to help people to subscribe to the calendar, and it was her idea to make that schedule available here, for the Annual, on the big screen that she made happen! Finally, she has reinvigorated our Zazzle store on the website with snazzy new warrior queen schwag. We couldn't do what we do without her - thanks, Nanci!
